MORMON APOSTLE SMOOT

Prospective United States Senator is Young, Wealthy and Popular.

Reed Smoot, apostle of the Mormon church, who is practically assured of election to the United States senate from Utah, as a result of the spirited campaign he waged, is but little over forty years, wealthy and popular.

His father was one of the pioneers who crossed the plains with Brigham Young, and was an early settler of Provo, Mr. Smoot's present home. His wife is a daughter of H. S. Eldredge, a leading banker of Salt Lake City. She brought him a fortune, which he has increased by careful handling, until he himself is reputed to be a millionaire. He is a banker and manufacturer and is interested in a large number of other enterprises.

Throughout Utah officials of the Mormon church electioneered for him while he had the assistance of Senator Thos. Kearns, whom, it is said, he is to help in return two years hence. His candidacy split the republican party in the state, for many were opposed to the idea of electing a mormon apostle. These supported openly the democratic legislative candidates, who would vote for the return of Senator J. L. Rawlins, if elected. On the other hand, many of the mormon democrats, who are susceptible to ecclesiastical influence in politics, were brought over to Smoot.—Washington Star.

What Will the Republicans Do?

That conservative republican paper, the Washington Star, asks the question. It says: "And now that the republicans have secured the next house what will they do with it? What interpretation will they put upon the verdict of the election? Will they construe it as instruction to 'let well enough alone'? Will the Fifty-eighth congress meet, maneuver a little for position in the presidential race, and adjourn in midsummer with nothing to show in the way of legislation but the supply bills? Will they hesitate to take up the tariff question for fear of unsettling business? Will they tackle the trusts only in the way of propositions which if adopted will lead but to protracted wrangles in the courts? Action of a definite character upon these two questions will be expected by the country. The Dingley law needs revision. The trusts need regulation. Of talk on both of those propositions the country has heard no little, and before the 1st of December, 1903, will hear a good deal more. A do-nothing congress will not meet the requirements of the situation. A republican majority shuffling and evading in matters of pressing national concern will be out of line with the record of an organization which was founded in courage and has justified its long existence by material accomplishments."

Overland in China.

A conference of the directors of the Chinese Eastern railway and of various European systems was held in Berlin on the 8th, and decided that through trains from Paris and Berlin to Peking would be started early in the coming year, when the Chinese Eastern railway will be open for traffic. For the next few years the journey from western Europe to Peking will consume from eighteen to nineteen days, and to Chinese and Japanese ports from twenty to twenty-one and a half days, which is practically ten days less than the journey from Hamburg or England, via the Suez canal or via Vancouver, requires. In 1906 the new roadbed of the Trans-Siberian railway will be completed, and the increased speed that this will allow will shorten the journey by three or four days more.—New York Commercial-Advertiser.

A dutchman, addressing his dog, said: "You was only a dog, but I wish I was you. Ven you go mit the bed in you shust durn round dree times and lay down. Ven I go mit the bed in, I haf to lock up de blade and vind de clock and put de cat out and undress myself, and my wife wakes up and scols me, den de baby cries and I haf to walk him up and down; den maybe yen I shust go to sleep, it's time to ged up again. You blay round all tay and haf plenty of fun. I haf to work all tay and haf plenty of drouble. Ven you die, you'd dead; ven I die, I haf to go to hell yet."—Unidentified.

There are two places in the United States where liquors are sold which are sacred from the jurisdiction of the laws of the land—the restaurants in the house and senate wings of the capitol building, Washington. This sacredness was for all time settled by Chief Justice Alvey of the District Court of Appeals, when he reversed the decision of the police court, which would have made the proprietors of these two refreshment rendezvous of the nations legislators either pay $300 or go to the workhouse for sixty days.

The Journal for Investors says: "What is known among copper men as the famous 'lost lode' has, according to Professor Agassiz, been found by Capt. Samuel Parnell, the Calumet & Hecla expert in charge of the Lake Superior mines. The lode was encountered early in the summer and reported by Captain Parnell to be richer than any other ore found in years in the lake region."

Phoenix physicians are puzzled over a recent happening in that city. A year ago a needle which a young lady had sticking in her belt, entered the young lady's waist. A few days ago it worked its way out of the arm of a young man who was a frequent visitor at the lady's residence. The doctors are wondering how it got there.—Ex.

The first bottle brought relief; several cured me. I am back to my old weight, 148 pounds." One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, relieves the cough at once, draws out inflammation, cures croup. Success in mining, as in that of railroad building, means success for the industries of every hamlet, village, town and city within its reach, and the man or the enterprise that makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before is a public benefactor.—Ex.
